A National Monetary Policy

WITH the re-up of legislation in Washington, little has been heard of the new banking bill, and singularly enough, the reason for this silence is one of the most encouraging features of the whole financial situation. Ordinarily, the enactment of important financial legislation is followed by a flood of individual contributions announcing to the world that the bill has been defeated, or else that it has been passed, but with such amendments as to render it valueless. Experience has taught the public to look for this sort of result, and the fact that the bill has been delayed in the Senate for so long a time without bringing forth any of these customary announcements is a good omen for its future. It is evident that the people are beginning to realize that the question of a national currency is one which cannot be settled by the hasty action of a few men, however well intentioned they may be, and that the best that can be done is to secure the passage of a bill which will be the result of the most careful consideration and discussion. The Senate has taken the right course in this matter, and has refused to be stampeded into the passage of any measure which has not been thoroughly discussed in all its bearings. The bill which has been reported from the Committee on Finance is undoubtedly the best that could be obtained at present, and it is to be hoped that it will be passed without any further delay. It is not a perfect measure, but it is the best that could be obtained at present, and it is to be hoped that it will be passed without any further delay. Sidewalk Symphonies

IT IS all very well for the Metropolitan Opera to feel a new lease of existence, but the people who have to live in the city and pay the bills for the whole show are not so much interested in the artistic success of the season as in the question whether they can get home from the theatre or concert without being run over by a cable car, or else have to walk a mile or more in the mud and slush to find a car that is not already crowded to the platforms. The cable companies have been very much criticised of late for their lack of enterprise in providing more cars for the theatre hours, and it is to be hoped that the new management will take hold of the matter with a vigorous hand, and not be satisfied with merely putting on a few more cars on the Tremont street line. The Boylston street line is also in need of more cars, and the Washington street line, which is the only one that runs to the Providence depot, is always overcrowded at the time when the Providence boat arrives. The Commonwealth avenue line is also in need of more cars, and the Huntington avenue line is in a very bad way indeed for more cars. The Cambridge lines are also overcrowded at times, and the Charles river bridge is a disgrace to the city. The Cambridge people have been very patient in the matter of cars, but they have their rights, and they should insist on having them. Pennsylvania Railroad Electrification Nears Completion

One of Pennsylvania Railroad's Electric Locomotives. Inset—W. W. Atterbury, President

Inset—Associated Press

Time between New York and Washington cut down by powerful locomotives

PHILADELPHIA, Penna., March 12—Fourteen new giant electric locomotives are cutting down the running time between New York and Washington as the result of electrification as the Pennsylvania Railroad completed the first 88 miles of its electrification program between New York and Philadelphia, to Millbank, N. J., on Sunday.

The GG-1 is intended for the fastest passenger service, and will be used on the Philadelphia-New York to Washington service. Two types are being used. The GG-1 is intended for the fastest passenger service, and will be used on the Philadelphia-New York to Washington service. It is expected that 90 of the GG-1 locomotives will be in service by April 1. When electrification is completed from New York to Washington as the first Pennsylvania locomotives are placed in use on that line, it is expected that 88 passenger trains will be handled each day, and the cost-reducing influence of electric locomotives will be felt throughout the railroad system.

The GG-1 electric locomotive is 79 feet 6 inches long and weighs 470 tons. Two units are coupled together, and are capable of developing 4600 horsepower. The locomotive is capable of hauling a 1000-ton train at 100 miles an hour.

In addition to the 14 new locomotives now in service 17 more are under construction. When the whole fleet of 31 is completed within the next two months, seven will be taken to Philadelphia, and 24 will be placed in New York and Washington service. Each will weigh 3½ pounds of each driving axle, and will be capable of developing 4600 horsepower.

Passengers are already enjoying the increased speed and smoothness of electric operation as a result of the electrification program between New York and Philadelphia, and the new locomotives will be capable of hauling 12 all-steel cars at 100 miles an hour.

In fact, more than the new locomotives themselves, the entire railroad system is undergoing a transformation. Two tracks are being added to the present four-track main line between New York and Philadelphia, and 24 miles of the new two-track electrified line between Philadelphia and Paoli, will be finished by the end of the year.

Other improvements include the elimination of 21 grade crossings between Philadelphia and Paoli, and the construction of signaling and interlocking systems of the most modern design.

The electrification of the Pennsylvania Railroad's main line between New York and Washington, D. C., is the largest project undertaken by any railroad since the end of the World War. Its completion will mean that passengers will be able to travel between the two cities in 2 hours and 55 minutes, instead of the present 3 hours and 35 minutes

Industry in W. Conscription Of Labor Protests

Would Be Slavery, A. F. of L. Speaker Says, and Keep Wages at Bottom

Special from Monitor Bureau

WASHINGTON, March 11—Industry would be slavery if the workmen to whom it pays wages could not bargain collectively through their own chosen representatives, declared William L. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in opposing the Black-Connery bill for the limitation of the working week to thirty hours, before the Senate Judiciary Committee today.

"Why should the Government, in a country which professes to be democratic, undertake to tell the workmen how they shall organize?" he asked. "Why should it undertake to tell them that they shall not organize in the way they think best to protect their own interests?"

Mr. Green declared that the bill would not accomplish its purpose of spreading employment, but would result in a reduction of wages and purchasing power.

"Industry is not going to employ more men than it needs," he said. "It will not employ more men than it can profitably employ. It will not employ more men than it can sell the products of their labor for. If you reduce the hours of labor, you reduce the purchasing power of the people who work in industry, and you reduce the number of people who can buy the products of industry."

Mr. Green said that the bill would not increase the number of jobs, but would increase the cost of production, and that the increased cost would be passed on to the consumer.

"Labor is not responsible for the depression," he said. "Labor is the victim of the depression. Labor is suffering from the depression. Labor is not responsible for the fact that there are 12,000,000 unemployed in the country. Labor is not responsible for the fact that there are millions of workers on part time. Labor is not responsible for the fact that there are millions of workers receiving starvation wages. Labor is not responsible for the fact that there are millions of workers who have been deprived of the right to work."

Mr. Green said that the bill would not increase the purchasing power of the people, but would decrease it.

"Why should we reduce the purchasing power of the people?" he asked. "Why should we reduce the ability of the people to buy the products of industry?"

Mr. Green said that the bill would not increase the number of jobs, but would increase the cost of production

Independence

Written for The Christian Science Monitor

NATIONS cherish political independence. So do states in union. Even provinces and municipalities prize a local independence. There are the symbols of the public as a small fee, which goes to the local newspaper. There are the symbols of the middle-class suburb. Allen Downs, a small country town, is proud of its high school football team. There are the symbols of the peasant in the field, who will not change his methods of cultivation at the suggestion of the county agent. There are the symbols of the individual in his home, who will not change his habits at the request of his wife. There are the symbols of the child in the nursery, who will not change his toys at the request of his mother.

Independence is a good thing. It is a necessary thing. It is a thing to be cherished and preserved. But it is not a thing to be worshiped. It is not a thing to be idolized. It is not a thing to be made into a religion. It is not a thing to be made into a fetish. It is not a thing to be made into a god.

Independence is a thing to be used. It is a thing to be used for the benefit of the individual, the community, the nation, the world. It is a thing to be used for the benefit of the family, the church, the school, the lodge, the club, the union, the association, the party, the corporation, the trust, the chain, the combine, the merger, the pool, the cartel, the syndicate, the trade agreement, the gold standard, the silver standard, the bimetallic standard, the tariff, the quota, the embargo, the boycott, the strike, the lockout, the sit-down strike, the picket line, the blacklist, the yellow dog contract, the injunction, the writ of habeas corpus, the writ of mandamus, the writ of certiorari, the writ of prohibition, the writ of attachment, the writ of execution, the writ of replevin, the writ of ejectment, the writ of quo warranto, the writ of error, the writ of certiorari, the writ of supersedeas, the writ of mandamus, the writ of habeas corpus

Spring Coats and Ensembles

Huge Lapels, Tricky Sleeves, and Hip Yoke Noted

By Helen Johnson Keyes

Special from The Christian Science Monitor Bureau

NEW YORK

THE question, "What do I need for my spring wardrobe?" can be answered with unusual definiteness this season.

Of course, one always has a number of fundamentals left over, but as this writer has observed, there are also certain definite trends in fashion which are sure to affect a normal spring wardrobe.

Perhaps the most important of these concerns the coat. It will be wise to select a tailored model, one which is adaptable to many costumes, and one which will be useful throughout the season.

Fortunately, there is a wide choice of coat styles this year, ranging from the straight-line box coat to the flared model, and from the fitted redingote to the cape. Sleeves are varied, too, with the set-in sleeve, the raglan, and the kimono all represented.

Fabrics are of unusual interest, with tweeds, homespuns, and diagonal weaves leading in favor. Plaids are also good, and there are many attractive checks and stripes.

Colors are varied, with the new shades of blue, green, and brown leading the field. Black and white are also good, and there are many interesting mixtures of these colors with the new shades.

Fur trimmings are in high favor, and there are many interesting ways in which they are used. Large collars, deep cuffs, and border trimmings are all seen on the new coats.

Belts are also important, and there are many attractive ways in which they are used. Some coats have self-belts, while others have belts of contrasting material. Buckles are large and decorative.

Sleeves are varied in length, with the three-quarter length very popular. Many coats have the new kimono sleeve, which is comfortable and graceful.

Pockets are placed in many interesting positions, and there are many variations in the set of the pockets. Some are flap pockets, while others are set in the seams.

Linings are usually of a contrasting color, and there are many attractive designs in lining materials. Plaids are very popular for linings, and there are many interesting combinations of plaid and plain linings.

Skirts are usually straight, with a few flares in evidence. Pleats are also seen, and there are many variations in the set of the pleats.

Suits are essential to a smart spring wardrobe, and there are many interesting ways in which they are worn. Suits with fitted jackets are worn with dressy blouses, and suits with tailored jackets are worn with sports blouses.

Suits of Three Types

A suit is essential to a smart wardrobe this spring. As the weather becomes more mild, one will find that a suit with a fitted jacket and a dressy blouse will be very useful. For the sports suit, a tailored jacket and a sports blouse are the best choice.

Three types of suits are shown in the illustration on this page. The first is a fitted coat with a flared skirt. The second is a jacket with a straight skirt. The third is a suit with a tailored jacket and a dressy blouse.

The Separate Coat.

Sheer woolen novelty weaves combined in tailored models are the favorites for the separate coat. Such fabrics as tricotine, twill, and flannel are shown in the new coats.

Bolivias are to be influential this spring. Monotone—one may be found in almost every color—is the favorite, but there are also many two-tone effects. Plaids are also good, and there are many interesting combinations of plaid and plain materials.

Douglas Declares Federal Spending Threatens Liberty

PHILADELPHIA, March 17 (AP)—Destruction of the nation's currency and "middle-class" population and possible establishment of a dictatorship would be the result of the inflation—will be adopted to meet the crisis—Senator Couzens' plan to pay veterans' bonus with new money—Hoover's recovery program criticized by Democrats—Senate debates Muscle Shoals bill.

Dictator of Socialism or Fascism is almost inevitable result of the deficit financing which is now being proposed, Dr. Walter E. Spahr, professor of economics at New York University, declared in an address here tonight before the Pennsylvania Society of New York.

"Only a dictator—whether it be a Socialist or Fascist—could put over the program which is now being proposed," Dr. Spahr said. "Such a program would be impossible under democratic government."

Hold "so-called ordinary expenditures" down to the present level, Dr. Spahr urged, and borrow the remainder of the money needed to balance the budget. Convert Federal credit agencies into "privately liquidating agencies."

Convert Federal credit agencies in the following steps:

"It the Federal Land Banks, Joint Stock Land Banks, Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the Federal Intermediate Credit Banks should be authorized to issue bonds to the amount of their capital stock and surplus, and to lend the proceeds of such bond issues to the mortgagors of the respective institutions, at the same rates of interest and for the same periods as the mortgages held by the institutions, the mortgagors would be able to pay off their mortgages in full at the end of the period of the bonds, and the institutions would be able to pay off their bonds

Boston Bruins Climb Amtrican Division Ice Hockey Honors

Bruins Defeat Hornets in Overtime Game for Championship—Eddie Shore Scores Winning Goal—Tie Game Decided on Penalties—Record Crowd Attends Contest

Eddie Shore, former University of Michigan star, and now the property of Boston Bruins, is responsible for the greatest championship thrill in the history of the Boston Garden-Arena hockey fans. Shore, who has been playing a great game all season, scored the winning goal in the overtime period of the championship game between the Bruins and Montreal Maroons, which was played before a record crowd of 16,000 persons at the Garden-Arena last night.

The game was the deciding contest between the Bruins and Maroons for the championship of the American Division of the International Hockey League, and the victory entitles the Bruins to meet the Toronto Maple Leafs, champions of the Canadian division, in the first game of the two-game total-goal series for the world's championship. The first game will be played in Toronto Garden-Arena on Monday night, and the second game in Boston Garden-Arena on Wednesday night.

Shore's goal came at 2:44 of the overtime period after Marty Burke had carried the puck down the ice and passed to Shore, who was standing in front of the Montreal goal. Shore's shot was low and hard, and it passed between the skates of Lorne Chabot, Montreal goalie, into the net.

Both teams had numerous opportunities to score during the overtime period, but neither could find the range. Chabot, Montreal goalie, made a number of brilliant saves, and Tiny Thompson, Boston goalie, was equally brilliant in preventing the Maroons from scoring.

Boston Bruins 1 0 0 1
Montreal Maroons 0 0 0 0

Goals—Shore.

Referee—Mike Rodden. Linesmen—Cooper Smeaton and Jack Benedict.

Toronto Maple Leafs Win Championship of Canada

Toronto Maple Leafs won the championship of Canada by defeating the Montreal Canadiens, 3 to 2, in the fifth game of the series at Toronto last night. The Leafs won the series, four games to one.

Toronto 3 0 0 3
Montreal 2 0 0 2

Goals—Toronto, Kennedy, Clancy, Conacher; Montreal, Gagnon, Morenz.
